LayTec GmbH converted into AG

LayTec AG announces its conversion from LayTec GmbH (a limited liability company) into LayTec AG (Aktiengesellschaft, joint stock corporation). With today's entry into the commercial register of Berlin/Charlottenburg, LayTec will operate in future as LayTec AG.

LayTec will continue being a privately owned company. The herewith announced conversion is not imposing changes to the shareholder structure, which has been stable for many years. The first advisory board was elected by the shareholder meeting in October 2010. Dr. Markus Weyers (Berlin), the chairman of the advisory board, is working together with Dr. Egbert Woelk (Boston) and Götz Fischbeck (Frankfurt/Main) to support and advise the CEO and president of LayTec AG, Dr. Thomas Zettler, and his board of managers.

LayTec belongs to the 50 fastest growing technology companies in Germany (Deloitte Fast 50 ranking for the company's growth in 2005–2009). The conversion into an 'Aktiengesellschaft' will give LayTec AG an even wider range of options for further growth of the company and for sharing our success with the employees.
